MIDAAN.

Independent Intellectual & Cultural Review · Amman · Palestine

FOUNDING ISSUE // AUTUMN 2026

ENTIHAB

ISSUE ZERO

Documenting the street narrative, the conflict of earth and sky, and the testaments of the immortal.

An independent forum for memory and cultural resistance.

EDITORIAL ESSAY

Conflict of Earth and Sky: Why the Palestine Cause Cannot Be Understood Apart from Faith

Midaan Review • Founding Issue (Autumn 2026) • 8 min read

At cold negotiating tables, politicians speak the language of numbers and borders; on the ground, reality speaks an entirely different language: the geography of faith.

Symbolic Editorial Woodcut: Conflict of Earth and Sky — deep roots anchored in stone beneath open heavens MIDAAN ARCHIVE // ART-01

The greatest error an outside observer can make is reducing the Palestinian-Israeli conflict to a mere border dispute or a political disagreement over statehood and resources. The truth is deeper and far more entrenched: an existential struggle where scriptural texts intertwine with infantry rifles.

The Torah as a Roadmap: Faith in the Service of Colonialism. To understand the heart of the conflict, one must examine how the Zionist movement employed religious faith as a tool of settler colonialism. Although founding figures were avowedly secular, they recognized early on that their project could never take hold without spiritual mobilization.

"A Verse in the Book": Roots in the Collective Conscience

Conversely, one cannot understand the steadfastness of the Palestinian people without understanding the religious conviction that sustains it. For Palestinians—and for the Arabs and Muslims who stand behind them—Palestine is not a tract of earth that could be compensated elsewhere; it is a verse in sacred text.

- Twin Pillars of Spiritual & Historical Bond:

• Al-Isra wal-Miraj: Earth's gateway to heaven and the first Qibla of Islam.
• Duty of Ribat: Continuous vigilance over the frontiers of truth, transforming endurance into sacred worship.

The Collapse of Political "Pragmatism": The dilemma lies in the impossibility of dismantling faith through politics. A politician might concede land for privileges, but how does one surrender sanctities woven into the marrow of human identity?

The Palestinian struggle is a war of narratives and identity before it is a war of rifles. While Zionism strains history to manufacture artificial legitimacy, the Palestinian narrative stands rooted like an ancient olive tree, drawing endurance from unshakable conviction.

> «The Palestinian struggle cannot be reduced to a passing border dispute; it is an existential conflict in which sacred scripture intertwines with infantry rifles, and the accounts of prophets mix with United Nations resolutions.»